The agenda of Global Partnership for Effective Development Cooperation (GPEDC) has gained momentum these days because of increased need of development financing for achieving Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). This is especially important for the underdeveloped and developing world. Various efforts are put by all stakeholders to make the agenda more prominent and result focused. With the caveat of concentration of financial resources in the developed countries, a shared vision of maximizing the globalization merits and minimizing the negative impacts are in place to materialize these efforts. Learning from the positivity of resource mobilization in attaining the Millennium Development Goals (MDGs), the more advanced efforts are needed to help all the countries to attain SDGs. The collaborative efforts from State and Non State actors of Development is thus needed to this end.

Second High Level Meeting on Effective Development Cooperation (HLM2) held in Nairobi, Kenya from 28 November to 1 December 2016 is one of the latest series of international efforts for Global Partnership for Effective Development Cooperation. Global Partnership for Effective Development Cooperation was established in Busan in 2011 aiming to build political momentum for change, ensure identification of challenges and learn from each other about ways to improve the effectiveness of development cooperation at national and international levels. The Global Partnership for Effective Development Cooperation (GPEDC) became unique due to its inclusive, multi-stakeholder character enabling a broader range of development stakeholders to make strong contributions to the implementation of the 2030 Agenda. Its monitoring framework represents a distinct tool to track progress amongst development partners in the spirit of mutual learning and accountability.

The First High Level Meeting held in Mexico City, 2014 had made use of the results from the first monitoring round to guide discussions and Nairobi meeting used its findings from this report to underpin inclusive dialogue on the individual and collective action that is still needed to enhance development impact and yield sustainable results on the ground. The Outcome Document of HLM2 has identified four principles of Global Partnership, namely (i) Ownership of Development Priorities by Partners Receiving Support, (ii) Focus on Results, (iii) Inclusive Partnerships and (iv) Transparency and Accountability.

The Global Partnership can be honored as a global movement committed to support country led efforts and inform global policy dialogue on effective development cooperation, including follow up and review of the Addis Ababa Action Agenda and the SDGs. Nepal, as a member and stakeholder of this process, urges all development stakeholders everywhere to jointly devise a way forward for effective implementation of the agreed actions recorded in the Outcome Document of HLM2. Nepal is confident that our Development Partners align with our aim of maximizing the contribution of effective development cooperation collectively, inclusively and effectively to materialize the development priorities as envisioned in our periodic plans. Nepal is equally confident that the responsibilities identified by HLM2 will be sincerely fulfilled by all stakeholders for the benefit of the people, places and regions that remained behind for long. Our efforts need to be geared towards leaving no one behind in the process of development by implementing the agreed actions and principles envisaged in the HLM2 Outcome Document.
